Short-Term Forecast Discussion

An isolated shower / thunderstorm will be possible after 12pm to sunset on Wednesday (~20-30%)...still looking to be a better chance closer to Houston vs the Boarding Stations. A weak front will approach from the north between 10pm Wed to 3am Thurs that may offer up an iso shower / storm chance as well, bringing much calmer winds behind the boundary.

- Winds will continue to be breezy on Wednesday out of the South, sustained at 13-18 MPH, gusting at times to 20-30 MPH.
- High temps for our Wednesday will reach into the mid 70s for our stations, lower to mid 80s inland.
- Confidence on fog Wednesday night is still low; winds look to relax more tomorrow night after midnight, making the risk *possible. However, the upper-air soundings on the data are not very supportive of this risk at this time across the Boarding Stations. Will need to fine-tune today.
