Hazardous Weather Alerts:

ALL CLEAR

IMPORTANT FORECAST NOTES (as of 1:00 PM ET, 6/20/23):

- ✓ The rest of the early afternoon hours are favored to stay dry.
- ✓ Working mid PM through early evening (4-8 PM) will hold very low end (but non-0 chances) risk for an isolated pop-up shower as lingering energy just sticks around W PA. This energy departs the area near the ~8 PM timeframe, which will lead to chances winding down the deeper into the evening we work. Totals from any isolated precip that works through the area is on the order of Trace to 0.10" if caught under a pocket of rain.
- ✓ Temps will be in the upper 70s to start the game, falling to the low 70s toward the end. Winds out of the E at 8-13 MPH.

Dew Forecast

- ✓ Dew will be possible Wednesday AM ~70%. Clouds are the main factor that is keeping chances lower than they would be if we had clear skies.
