Hazardous Weather Alerts:

IMPORTANT FORECAST NOTES (as of 12:45 PM ET, 9/13/23):

- ✓ Data continues to trend drier for the afternoon and evening! That being said, anticipating a low end risk for a few isolated pockets of drizzle / light showers (5-10%) between 1 - 5 PM. Between 5 - 7 PM, a band of energy (currently carrying the scattered showers seen in E OH) will push into the area allowing for a 10-20% chance for hit and miss showers.
- ✓ After 7 PM, rain chances are expected to taper off leaving the rest of the evening dry. Anticipating any pockets of light showers that do develop to remain just south of the ball park.
- ✓ Anticipating feels like temperatures to be in the mid/upper 60s at the start of the game, before gradually decreasing to the low 60s F. Sustained winds out of the NNW at 5-10 MPH with gusts up to 25 MPH possible under a passing cell.

Dew Forecast

- ✓ Anticipating dew to be a risk Thursday morning.
