Favored Snowfall through 8 AM SAT

NEXT 5 DAYS: IMPORTANT FORECAST NOTES:

Precipitation:

- ✓ SAT: AM flurries will be possible before drier air starts to move in. Overall system totals in the 3" - 6". Confidence remains low with snowfall totals
- ✓ SUN: Anticipating dry conditions as high pressure builds in
- ✓ MON-FRI: The pattern will start to pick up and will offer multiple chances of rain through the week.
- ✓ MON: Need to watch for some light snow showers working into the area moving into the early afternoon. Then, getting into the evening we will need to keep an eye on a risk for freezing drizzle.
- ✓ TUE: Chances for a wintry mix on Tuesday. Freezing rain will be a risk moving through the early AM, with a rain snow mix following behind late morning and into the noon timeframe.

Temperatures:

- ✓ Unseasonably cold air will continue over the next few days with temperatures beginning to "warm up" a bit come Monday.
- ✓ Wind chill values near -8 F to -14 F will be possible SAT AM/ SUN AM.

Wind/Clouds:

- ✓ Better sunshine will be possible SAT PM into portions of Sunday, although we will need to watch for clouds to become more present SUN PM, likely high based clouds.
- ✓ Given a more active pattern next week, expect next week to just be cloudier in general.
