Potential Ice Accumulation: MON AM - TUE PM

NEXT 5 DAYS: IMPORTANT FORECAST NOTES:

Precipitation:

- ✓ TUE: Low confidence is present on a changeover time from freezing rain to rain, but this changeover can occur from about 11 PM MON - 3 AM TUE. After 3 AM rain is favored as temperatures will warm above 32 F. Drier air works into the backside of the system near sunrise Tuesday, and light drizzle will still be possible for the AM hours (temps remain above 32 F). Most rain chances exit near 6 PM.
- ✓ WED: Second wave of rain presses in from the south in the late AM, and light rain can linger into the PM
- ✓ THU: Scattered rain chances in the AM become more isolated in the PM. Rain chances look to exit late in the evening.
- ✓ FRI: Favoring dry conditions with a slight chance of rain in the AM.
- ✓ SAT: A few low end chances for a light rain with a few cases of flurries mixing in.

Temperatures:

- ✓ Temperatures expected to remain marginal today and Tuesday before more seasonable air works in mid week, bringing daily highs in the mid to upper 30s F.
- ✓ Late week temps THU/FRI can be near 40 F.

Wind/Clouds:

- ✓ Given the active period of shots of rain/wintry precipitation, skies over the next 5 days will be mostly cloudy to overcast
- ✓ Outside of the stronger gusts of around 25 - 30 MPH today, the next risk for stronger gusts of around 20 - 25 MPH will be for both Tuesday and Thursday.
