Minor Snow Chance: SAT AM

NEXT 5 DAYS: IMPORTANT FORECAST NOTES:

Precipitation:

- ✓ WED: Very isolated chance for a stray shower/drizzle in the afternoon post 6 PM. Any rainfall amount would be < 0.01"
- ✓ THU: Hit/miss to isolated showers around mainly during the AM hours. An isolated shower is possible in the PM but most coverage looks to stay to the south. A few tenths of an inch are possible (app seeing totals well)
- ✓ FRI: Favoring dry conditions for the majority of the day. Would need to watch post 8 PM for a weak clipper system bringing a rain/snow mix
- ✓ SAT: Timing would need nailed down, but again potential for some flurries mainly prior to 8 AM
- ✓ SUN: While unlikely, would need to watch for another stray flurry in the AM. Another weak cold front looks to slide to the east.

Temperatures:

- ✓ Mild temperatures for this time of year in the low to mid 50s before a few cold fronts moderate temps a touch into the low 40s for the first half of the weekend
- ✓ Southwest flow will push milder air back into the picture to the second half of the weekend, with temps in the upper 50s F to start next week

Wind/Clouds:

- ✓ Mostly sunny skies today with increasing cloudiness tomorrow PM
- ✓ THU will be mostly cloudy to cloudy in the AM with partial clearing in the late PM. Outside of the weak snow chance late FRI PM/SAT AM, these days look to have more sun than clouds
- ✓ Gusts will continue to be a non-factor through this week. There can be 20-30 mph gusts via the cold front THU PM/FRI AM
