Potential Snow Totals: Thu PM - FRI Clipper

NEXT 5 DAYS: IMPORTANT FORECAST NOTES:

- ✓ TUE: Currently favoring dry conditions for TUE.
- ✓ WED: Dry conditions continue into WED
- ✓ THU: Watching for a clipper-like system, mainly very late in the PM. Totals still look too high in here and any snow chance would not arrive until post 8 PM. Risk is for snow showers to be delayed further
- ✓ FRI: Potential for accumulating snow continues mainly into Friday AM. At this distance around 1-2" of snow is not out of question. The PM looks to dry out, leaving only isolated rain/wet snow shower chances
- ✓ SAT: A second, but weaker clipper system will move on in the heels of the first clipper. Timing would not be until 7 PM at the earliest, but the potential for accumulating snow exists again. Too far out to get into specifics with totals.

Temperatures:

- ✓ A minor warm up occurs through Tuesday with high pressure settling in. Temperatures will moderate again behind the clipper system Thursday
- ✓ Slightly below normal temperatures bleed into the weekend

Wind/Clouds:

- ✓ Mostly sunny skies present for Tuesday and Wednesday
- ✓ Clouds will enter the picture into Thursday AM, transitioning into a cloudier pattern into the weekend
- ✓ Wind gusts can be elevated Tuesday PM at 25 - 35 mph outside of Tuesday, gusts do not look particularly strong
