Rainfall Totals Next 7 Days

NEXT 5 DAYS: IMPORTANT FORECAST NOTES:

- ✓ THU: Currently favoring THU to be a dry day. Confidence is a bit lower than normal, but expectation is for a narrow area of moisture to stay south THU evening.
- ✓ FRI: FRI AM is expected to be dry as the aforementioned area of moisture is expected to stay south. Chances will be on the increase FRI night into SAT AM (currently thinking after 9 - 10 PM).
- ✓ SAT: Rain should start to exit in the 6 - 8 AM timeframe on SAT AM. Rainfall amounts of 0.25 - 0.5" cannot be ruled out through the AM hours of SAT. A few isolated to scattered showers will be possible in the afternoon - overwhelming bulk is expected to stay east.
- ✓ SUN: Confidence remains low on the specifics on Sunday, but showers/ storms will be possible. SUN afternoon would need to be monitored for activity pending on where a warm front sets up. Better threat exists into overnight SUN into MON AM when a warm front will be in closer proximity.
- ✓ MON: Waves of rain will be possible on Monday with the potential for heavy rain and perhaps some stronger storms. Rain chances look consistent through the day at this distance.

Temperatures:

- ✓ An overall seasonable temperature outlook is expected over the next few days.
- ✓ A risk vs the chart above is for low temperatures on FRI AM to drop closer to 32 F or even lower.

Wind/Clouds:

- ✓ Winds will pick up just slightly into the weekend. In particular, MON will need to be monitored for stronger wind gust potential if stronger storm risks materialize. Behind the system on TUE winds will likely be elevated as well.
- ✓ Cloud cover will have a more notable increase this weekend with a frontal boundary around the area. More sunshine expected through FRI.
