FORECAST NOTES

Current Weather Alerts:

All Clear

Temperatures:

High temps will reach the mid 30s F today. Overnight low temps will sit in the low 30s F.

Wind/Clouds:

Overcast skies expected until 9 PM, then clear. Winds will be sustained at 3 – 8 MPH with gusts reaching 10 MPH.

Wind Direction:

Winds will be variable throughout the day. By ~12 PM, winds will be from the 1B line to LF. By ~6 PM, they will be from CF to HP.

Today's Precipitation Chances:

Favoring widespread rain to begin working into the area by 11AM – 12PM. At times we will see snow mixing into this activity, however the sun and temperatures above 32 F will make rain the primary P-type. Totals represented on hourly image above are overdone as we anticipate most if not all of this to melt. Post sunset, the risk for more snow will increase with a better chance of slushy impacts. Favoring activity to exit by ~8-9 PM.

Rain/Snow Totals:

Snow will have difficulty accumulating before sunset today (hourly image above seeing what could fall from the sky, not what is seen on the ground) however a brief slushy 0.1" cannot be ruled out after sunset. Otherwise favoring 0.1 – 0.2" in total liquid accumulation today.

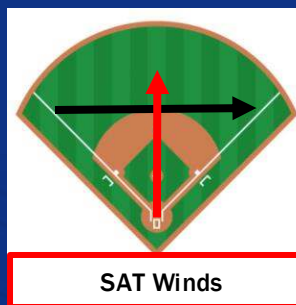

Dew/Frost:

Dew is likely SAT AM. Elevated surfaces will be at the greatest risk for frost.
